MAY YOHE'S SUDDEN TRIP.

SHE IS SAID TO JURY OF A SENSATIONAL DIVORCE CASE.

Has Not Yet Been to Get Off Again—How the Actress Came to Take a Flying Trip Eastward with Young S. H. Hunt—Her Mother Says She Was Sent to Bypass Him—Hunt Says She Was Sent to Bypass Her—Mr. Hunt's Father Has Something to Say on the Subject.

May Yohe

Miss Yohe, the actress who is credited with being divorced by the express of a titled gentleman, by name Hunt.

Mr. Yohe obtained a decree of the Cook county circuit court yesterday, but the decree will not become effective for thirty days.

"Where's the money," she said, "that they keep the men?"

"Is the money mine? Has Miss Yohe returned from Toledo?"

"Horses have been sold before, and will always be sold when women. My daughter is not here now. She became so crying tonight, but I forgave her."

"Is she at home now or gone for breakfast [illegible] this morn?"

"I have said that you cannot see Miss Yohe. No one shall see her. I don't care how he is, before 11 o'clock tomorrow."

"Is he the one who plays Monday night?"

"She went to Minneapolis by the train."

"She went to the races, didn't she?"

"Yes, Mrs. and Miss Yohe and Miss Francisco went to [illegible]."

"And not Mr. Hunt there?"

"No, and even other gentlemen."

"And Mr. Hunt not the other gentleman present to partake of [illegible] and other cooling beverages?"

"No, they all drank some, but not enough to [illegible] him. The trouble was, he [illegible] nothing. She is not crying [illegible]. Miss Francisco brought [illegible] and I was so sure that she was her friend."

"And then did they arrive home?"

"It was about half past 1, I think."

"What was she with them?"

"No, they went alone and returned alone."

"Do you say Miss Yohe wished to stay in right, or she would refuse to see me on account of illness."

"I have warned my word that no one shall see my daughter tonight, and I shall not break it. I am a fine woman, sir, and I have been subjected to death with young men."

"Does your daughter have many callers?"

The mother of the pretty Princess made a picture more expressive than volumes of words.

"They come in swarms," she said.

"I am very sorry, but subpoena cannot serve you?"

"No, they are pretty cards. O, how I have those cards. Why, last Sunday evening they nearly stove me crazy. I actually got so mad at one young man that I said to him: 'If you ever dare to come to these doors again I'll throw a pail of hot water on you!'"

"Is it true that Miss Yohe has not been dealt with since Mr. Hunt?"

"You say that Miss Yohe came home from the races Monday evening and has not been out of the house since. She will pay [illegible] afternoon if she is able to stand. You may see her tomorrow, but no one shall see her tonight."

OF COURSE HUNTER

"Well, sir, can I be of any assistance to you tonight?" he kindly asked after the visitor had introduced himself.

"I believe you can, Mr. Hunt. A story has been circulated today to which your son's name is associated with a lady."

"Who is the woman?"

"Miss May Yohe, the star of the 'Crystal Slipper.'"

"I will frankly tell you what I know. Last evening Mr. David Henderson of the Chicago Opera house came to look. I was astonished beyond measure when he informed me that my S. H. Hunt had eloped with Miss May Yohe. For my part have been during the day and was to have taken the 3 o'clock train for New York.

"Do you know where S. H. H. Mr. Henderson said?"

"I suppose he's in the country," I said. "I have he told me he wouldn't return to the city, that his wife made it too unpleasant for him, and he preferred to be away."

"Well, said Mr. Henderson, 'Miss Yohe and [illegible] are together! I saw him at [illegible] and [illegible] with young Hunt."

"The boy," continued Mr. Hunt, "was not home the old self when he returned. About a year and two or three months ago he eloped, you recollect, [illegible] Miss Caldwell, a [illegible] girl, and went to St. Paul, where they were married. They have since [illegible] here and for eight months they lived in this house. From the moment she came into this family we have not enjoyed peace. She has let my boy, who is a good boy, a perfect hell on earth. I have a good wife, [illegible] and [illegible]. ALGER'S SOUTHERN VOTES.

Alleged Scheme to Get Delegates to Bolt on the Ballots.

Six Colonels Brought Over the Alabama Line Were Counted for the Use of Daniel—Some Confusion Also in Florida and Southern a Stake—Mr. Depew to Bolt for Reorganization—Lot S. Sherman's Views—General Political Gossip.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—Senator Sherman and a number of the members of Congress left for Cincinnati this afternoon to attend the convention. The Senator was seen at the Baltimore & Ohio railway station a few minutes before his departure and asked what he had to say concerning the interview printed in today's New York World with Col. Hallett of Detroit about the alleged use of money at the Chicago Convention to capture Southern votes for Gen. Alger. Col. Hallett and Col. Bacon had full charge of Gen. Alger's campaign before the convention. They at once set themselves to inducing a good many Southern delegates to vote for Gen. Alger. In an interview published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and other papers before the convention convened to both Senator Sherman intimated broadly that these Southern votes had been obtained by the use of money. Col. Hallett denies the intimation that money was used by him, Alger's behalf says that there were charges that money was used in the interest of Senator Sherman, and points out that many of Alger's supporters in the North were now the weighty for cash or ask for money for their votes. When Senator Sherman's attention was called to the matter he said:

"I have not seen the interview with Hallett, but I know his manner in which these Southern votes were cleared for Alger the power is of who-knows-no connection."

"Col. Hallett says he has written you a letter asking if you had made the charges attributed to you. Have you received such a letter?"

"I received a letter of that kind several days ago."

"Did you make any reply?"

"It might seemed to be necessary. It was a matter of notice with which both those were charged. I never heard of the word [illegible] before. What is it? What is one of [illegible]?"

"Do you think Col. Hallett intended to be misleading when Alger's manager," replied the correspondent.

"I am sure he was in his statements."

"Do you care to say anything more?"

"No. I shall attend to it personally

Lincoln, July 3.—On the anniversary holiday of the trial of the first writ of Frank Hight (Democrat) against the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company with a view to securing that the Democratic party of Illinois should receive the benefits of the charter granted to it by the legislature of 1867, Attorney General Winter this morning filed a petition in the supreme court of the state asking for a writ of quo warranto against the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of New Jersey, to show by what authority it exercises the franchises granted to it by the state of Illinois. The tenth annual meeting of the Music Teachers' National Association was called to order in Central Music Hall yesterday morning by the President, Asa Leyboure. There were between 50 and 60 people in the hall.

SCENE AT MUSIC TEACHERS.

The exercises were begun with an organ solo by Samuel Sanford, Mus. D. Penn, Professor of the Chicago Board of Education, who then introduced and made a brief address of welcome. He said that it was no matter to every one that something besides personal comfort brought the audience to gather from all parts of the United States. They came to witness educational interests, and Chicago, who wanted to be second the first in educational matters, extended a cordial welcome. Chicago had for a long time been prepared to receive them. First and foremost in the city here, after the great fire, in rebuilding and recently in erecting new churches, for one she was during more attached to educational matters. There was now firmly established in the public schools and the public school was the pattern to the music teachers. He pointed to the music teachers. He closed by saying that this was the first convention held in Chicago this year without rival which was harmony.

President Leyboure replied, giving hearty thanks for the reception to the metropolis. He gave a synopsis of the objects of the Music Teachers' Association of America, which were progress, and appealed that every Music Teacher, be he Reformer, that other great result. He then reviewed the growth of the association in the various States, and said it would be well nothing to say that it would be well nothing to say that it would be well nothing to say that

A BOLD DEMOCRATIC PLAN.

WHAT THE BARTLETT COMMITTEE ON THE RIVER IS ABOUT.

Secretary of the Other Side Made to Count Out of the California Republican Members—Senator Perkins Declares He Pulls Will Without Doubt Be Challenged—The Chicago Post-Office Building—Other Capital News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—[Special.]—There will be big fight in the House when the open sessions of the Constitutional Election come before that body. It will be a party fight from first to last. Bartlett has committee by a strict party vote decided to unseat Hilborn, a regular Democrat, in the seat to which Robert Devlin, the so-called anti-Gorman Democrat from the Seventh Sixth Congressional District, Township by another party vote has decided to unseat Charles B. Pence, a Republican, elected from the Fifth California District, and seat a Democrat named Metzger.

Hilborn was counted in over Devlin by the grossest fraude. There was no balloting whatever. The vote was simply not counted. In some precincts the Democratic election officers declared it open the polls and not counting boards refused to count the returns even when in the election officers showed by the returns after those regularly appointed refused to act. More than 1,200 ballots cast locally for Devlin were thrown out on technicalities made by Democratic election officers, and they were probably overnight and purposely made to furnish the excuse for officers on excuse for refusing to receive them. A greater outrage on the ballot was never committed.

The California case is more far-reaching than the one in South Carolina. It involves the future political complexion of the House will be changed. It is now Republican. If Bartlett by seating each party will have the majority and the vote will be a tie. The vote of California would not constitute the control of the House. With California voting with the Republicans would mean a Democratic majority of the House. With California voting with the Democrats would mean a Democratic majority of the House. It is a fight to a finish. BANKING.

The leading banking movements were generally satisfactory. Cash continues very abundant, and the supply of loans in the commercial centers has been such as to keep the rates for money low. The demand for loans is light, and the banks are looking for business. A few strong institutions are willing to take long loans at 4 per cent, but the banks generally are not disposed to encourage borrowers for more than a few months. The operations in grain and provisions have been on a small scale, and the banks have not been called upon to furnish much money for speculative purposes. The movement of currency to the interior has been light, and the banks have not been called upon to furnish much money for that purpose. The receipts of currency from the interior have
